Anticipating the 2018 Annual Meeting and Updates on Council Activities

By: Patricia E. Ganey, PhD

Dr. Ganey shares information on the all-day Poster Sessions, which will be a new feature of the 2018 Annual Meeting and ToxExpo, as well as updates on SOT's engagement with FASEB and other strategic priorities.

The Use of Psychoactives for Mental-Health Disorders

By: Abimbola Farinde, PharmD, PhD

Psychoactive drugs are increasingly common treatment options for certain mental illnesses, and researchers continue to investigate their possible adverse effects, addiction potential, and health burden.

Toxicology in Jinan

By: Gary W. Miller, PhD, Toxicological Sciences Editor-In-Chief

Dr. Miller shares his impressions of the state of toxicology in China and efforts underway by Toxicological Sciences to increase engagement with Chinese toxicologists.
Paths Forward: Regional Chapter Programs Attracting Undergraduate Students to Toxicology

By: Karlyn E. Sant, PhD

SOT Regional Chapters are developing outreach programs to engage undergraduate students in their meetings, introducing budding scientists to the potential of research and careers in toxicology.

SOT Announces the 2018 Award Recipients

By: Courtney E.W. Sulentic, PhD, SOT Awards Committee Chair

Through its 2018 Awards, SOT recognizes more than two dozen groundbreaking scientists, emerging leaders, postdoctoral researchers, and graduate students who are advancing the science of toxicology.