

President's Message

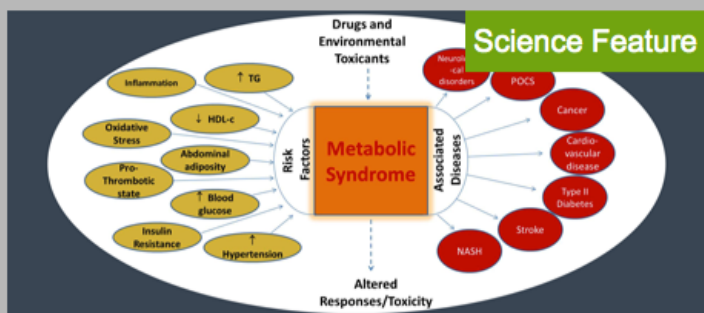

Exploring Toxicology Impacts, Expanding Outreach and Partnerships, and Preparing for the Annual Meeting

By: John B. Morris, PhD, ATS

The Society has formed two new task forces, which are charged with boosting the Society's outreach efforts to other scientists. In addition, SOT Council met with EUROTOX leaders to assess how the societies can continue to work together to further toxicology.

...more

Science Feature

Metabolic Syndrome: Toxicology's Next Patient

By: Vijayalakshmi Varma, PhD

With approximately 35% of all adults and 50% of individuals aged 60 years or older estimated to have metabolic syndrome, the disease is a major public health concern.

...more

Career Development

Creativity, Relevance, and Rigor: Three Key Aspects for Producing Good, Publishable Science

By: Robert E. Chapin, PhD

Publishing is an integral part of science. An SOT Board of Publications member shares his perspective on how to produce "good science" for publication... and for career satisfaction.

...more

Inspiring the Next Generation of Toxicologists

By: Teresa L. Leavens, PhD

Through on-campus visits and seminars, ToxScholars introduce undergraduates to toxicology, sparking new love for and interest in the field. "It's invaluable to be able to get tips and advice from professionals in the field, whether it's academia or industry."

Scientific Liaison Coalition Members Share Common Goal of Improving Public Health

By: Mary Jeanne Kallman, PhD, DSP; and Donna L. Mendrick, PhD

In just a few years, the Scientific Liaison Coalition has supported many events and programs to further its mission of improving public health through a collaborative interdisciplinary approach.

